Redcliff People Have Sheets of Christmas Seals

Were Received From The Committee In Medicine Hat

People of Redcliff have received lately sheets of Christmas Seals from a distribution committee in Medicine Hat.

The money realized from the sale of these seals is used for the prevention of tuberculosis.

Examinations are given free by any doctor and the fee is paid by the Christmas Seal organization. In case an X-ray is necessary, the provincial government contributes $2.00.

Hundreds of examinations have been given and by preventive medicine T. B. has been cut down considerably. Since the campaign has been launched in Medicine Hat the cost to the city for T. B. cases has been reduced by several hundred dollars a year. The City Council of Medicine Hat makes a generous contribution to the campaign each year.

People of Redcliff have been examined by various doctors and seals have been come by the Christmas Seals sale fund.

This is a worthy cause and deserves the support of every citizen of Redcliff.

Interesting Meeting Alberta Pool Delegates

Meeting Held in Calgary the Last Weekend, Interesting

There was an interesting meeting of the Alberta Wheat Pool in Calgary last week end.

L. W. Watson, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, was at the meeting and said that in his opinion, producers of farm products in the British Empire countries will have to give up the idea of an unlimited British market for their products. The United Kingdom since a free trade nation, is now definitely a high protectionist country. Agriculture in Britain is also being adequately protected.

Mr. Watson said Canadian farmers must organize to regulate the supply of farm products to market. If such a program does not prevent extremely low prices in agricultural commodities, then the farm production will have to be subsidized - not wheat alone.

"We in Western Canada have been fighting for low tariffs for over thirty years and have accomplished nothing," Mr. Watson said. "We have been kicking against a solid wall. A better method is to take active steps to see that prices of our own products are protected." He stated legislation is needed to control export and inter-provincial trade in farm products.

Orson Welles Announces Plans
For Campbell Playhouse Series

Orson Welles, brilliant young actor-producer of the Mercury Theatre, who is to produce and star in the "Campbell Playhouse" presentations over CFAC through the CBC and Columbia networks each Friday, beginning December 9, disclosed the plans for his new series. Welles and his sponsors have determined to offer listeners the best in current popular dramas featuring Welles together with guest stars from stage and screen. The youthful producer is now engrossed in the reading and selection of material.

Welles has developed a new and realistic radio technique, to which he is able to adapt, plays, novels, short stories or motion picture scenarios. This he is able to select from the whole field of story entertainment.

After an audition of Welles in June and a careful study of his broadcasts from week to week, it is felt that he is the logical man to assume leadership of this important new dramatic series.

His training in the theatre and in radio have complemented one another, and his metric successes in the two mediums have been simultaneous. The kaleidoscopic variety of his theatrical experiences, tumbling one upon another within the span of a few short years, has been coupled with a similar swift, and varied career in radio. Last winter witnessed the first climax of his Broadway career and this summer saw him duplicate that success on the airways. Now, as he launches into his second great season in the New York theatre he enters, at the same time, the second phase of his brilliant radio enterprise through the medium of the "Campbell Playhouse."

EXERCISE

Exercise should be regular and, at middle age, never strenuous. The purpose of exercise is to get the body healthily tired, not over-tired. A strenuous game of badminton for a man or woman over thirty-five years of age, especially after a hard day's work, is slow poison. Any too-vigorous exercise exhausts you nervously and physically.

There is not much fun in connection with doing "tettering" exercises every morning but they do help to keep you fit without any undue strain on your system. This exercise, in conjunction with walking golf, skating or other seasonal recreational activity, should certainly suffice for the average person.

Do not over-exercise. In this connection we are reminded of Chauncey Depew who, when asked what kind of exercise he took, answered: "I get my exercise acting as pallbearer to my friends who exercise."

SCHOOL NEWS

O Friday, December 2nd the Literary Society met in the clubroom. The meeting opened with the reading of the minutes for the previous week. A new work committee consisting of Eugene Jorgensen, Hannah Thorpe and Kate Jans was then appointed. The editor then made a request for more contributions for the editorial competition. Dolores Buchholz, Hilda Humphrey and Doreen Cooke then sang, "When Mother Nature Sings a Lullaby." The rest of the program consisted of eliminations for the Grade eights in the oratorical competition. Gordon Shesby gave an interesting talk on Cleopatra Cumingham the great runner. Alberta Mine Workers Convention at Calgary

Workmen's Compensation
Board Criticized

At the Alberta Federation of Labor Convention held in Calgary on Tuesday, a scathing attack was launched by delegates from locals of the United Mine Workers of America, on the administration of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The following demands were finally adopted: That the present seven-man Board be replaced by a three-man Board, one member of the Board to be a representative of the Federation of labor. That the legislature be asked to take out of the hands of the panel board of examining doctors the final decision as to compensation. That compensation rates be payable on the basis of 100% of the injured workman's earnings at the time of the accident, with a minimum of $20 per week.

Charges of dictatorial methods in administration, excessive costs of examination and flagrant unconcern for the rights of workmen were hurled at the board.

In municipalities which have had an average wheat yield of less than five bushels an acre for successive years the Dominion assumes the whole cost of farm relief. In other areas with better average crops but still in need of relief the costs are shared between the Dominion, the province and the municipality.

Transient Youth Problem Again

In a recent issue of this column attention was drawn to the plight of that sizeable army of young men wandering up and down the country in vain search for work and, perhaps, in a minority of cases, hunting for relief when the situation was referred to as a national disgrace, coupled with the suggestion that some provision should be made to give them work and wages.

It was pointed out that there is plenty of work that could be done with profit to the nation and the taxpayers and, in effect, that all that was needed was to connect these transient jobless men with this work.

Since that time these suggestions have found confirmation in an article in the November 12 issue of Toronto Saturday Night written by A. J. Elliott, who not only points out the necessity of providing work for these wanderers, but also allows them to be made a shuttlecock between the municipalities and the senior governments, but outlines in some detail the work to which they might well be put and the methods that should be adopted in carrying out the plan.

Since Mr. Elliott is the Superintendent of the Toronto Men's Hostel and has had much experience in social work in the United States and Canada his suggestions are not only interesting but carry with them the weight of experience and authority.

Mr. Elliott adopts the viewpoint that the problem instead of being insoluble has a relatively simple answer but if it is to be successful "a lot of money must be changed to the sufficient number of these to form an attempt to control a national liability to the conviction that we are actively engaged in conserving a national asset."

In making this statement it is apparent that Mr. Elliott is reaching down to the roots of the problem, for, if these men were regarded as a national asset to be conserved, as they undoubtedly are, it would not be very long before the demand that something be done to give them their rightful place in the economic life of the country, or at least a chance for it, would be sufficiently vociferous to bring forth relief.

For Unskilled Labor

As was stated before in this column there is plenty of work that can be done with advantage and Mr. Elliott not only confirms this statement in a general way but points out specifically some of the projects that might well be undertaken when he says:

"Grandiose schemes such as the construction of huge public buildings or super-highways demand large numbers of skilled artisans and trained engineers. The country has not a sufficient number of these to fulfil its normal requirements; and the result is merely to put a premium on the services of such workers.

"That the little jobs, such as changing level crossings to grade crossings, providing passable country roads, eliminating the hazards of pedestrians on highways by constructing footpaths; these, as well as such big jobs as reforestation for instance, require a minimum of skilled workmen and a maximum of laborers. From all of them the general public may derive as much benefit in the long run as the unemployed transients who would be directly assisted thereby."

Mr. Elliott suggests that the men be housed in comfortable and attractive camps, avoiding the mistakes of "our last terrible camp experiment," adding the important warning that the men should not be kept in such camps too long but that they should be made to provide with a definite program of education and as soon as possible graduate them into permanent work through the employment bureaus scattered across the Dominion. In other words, Mr. Elliott asks for a definitely co-ordinated program of temporary work, education and permanent employment and opportunity for re-establishment as soon as such may be available.

Effect On Morale

While all of this is sane and sound, not the least interesting feature of Mr. Elliott's plan is his recommendation as to remuneration. Pointing out that these men who have lost their municipal rights are offering aid to families and relatives who cannot afford to keep them, Mr. Elliott urges that they be paid, while engaged in such public projects, a minimum wage of thirty dollars a month and, except of five dollars to be retained by the men and the balance forwarded to the nearest of his.

Apart altogether from the economic effect of partially or wholly lifting the relief burden from the taxpayers on the family's account such disposition of a substantial percentage of the wages would have a marked effect on the family's morale "if their income was the earned wages of one of their number, instead of relief."

"As well as the claim to conserve its manpower and lighten the burden of relief that now falls so onerously on municipal taxpayers, not to mention the restoration of morale and self-respect to innumerable borderline and relief-seeking families who still retain the attitude that they are a burden on the policy of work for wages," says Mr. Elliott. "And that is the opportunity to provide education facilities to a group of its citizens who would benefit from such a program and who would eagerly avail themselves of it."

Such a program as that outlined by Mr. Elliott will strike a responsive chord in a good many breasts and will be approved not only by taxpayers but parents and relatives who have seen their young men fare forth in the vain hope of conquering the unemployment ogre and who are now being battered about from pillar to post, with hope dwindling the longer this problem remains ineffectively tackled.

Troubles Increasing

Man Without Country Is Now Man Without A Ship

John Dolanuk, "the man without a country," is also a man without a ship.

For the United States liner President Roosevelt sailed for Europe without him, refusing to recognize a deportation order issued by the U.S. department of labor.

Dolanuk rode 17,500 miles on the ship's lines last year as an uninvited guest. He is still in the United States, but he is physically impossible to send him to another country.

Dolanuk was born in Austria territory later ceded to Rumania. Immigration officials said he had entered both Canada and the United States illegally, gone to Spain as a volunteer with the government forces, and later stowed away again for the United States.

Courts have tried vainly to strip Dolanuk of the tangle of his national status. Great Britain, France, Germany, Rumania—among other countries—have refused him entry.

Alberta Oil Possibilities

Should Be Increasing Demand By British Empire

Alberta oil should be in increased demand by the British Empire because of its high gasoline content, R. A. Brown, Jr., of Calgary, told the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy conference in Vancouver.

Turner Valley, producing more crude than the available market requires, looks to other countries for increased share of the British market. The United States and expansion of the domestic market alone lower freight rates and increase share of the British market overseas, he said.

He said the British Empire now produces only about five per cent. of its crude oil requirements. He discounted the feasibility of a pipeline route to the Pacific seaboard. Brown expressed belief that as soon as potential production justified a large enough flow of oil, need of downward adjustment of railway freight rates would follow.

Lincoln Was Inventor

Application For Patent For Fontaine Pens Among Old Papers

New York has just found an old safe dating back to the middle of the last century. Experts opened it with care, and inside a number of models and papers. Some of the papers were signed "A. Lincoln Springfield, Illinois." Investigation revealed that they had been written by the great President Abraham Lincoln himself, and were, in fact, part of the statesman's leisure time hobby of invention. Among the contents of the safe was an application for a patent to patent a fountain pen, which, filled with compressed air, would lift "cups" over bars or through shafts, and would discharge their "cargo."

Milk And Lemonade

Preferred By British Soldiers In India

Rudyard Kipling notwithstanding, the modern British soldier in India prefers milk and lemonade to other soft drinks. Authorities attribute a sharp decrease in sunstroke and heat exhaustion to this preference, but the number of hospital admissions is still high. Of the 50,000 British troops in India, 30,000 annually are admitted to hospital, and the ratio for troops served at home. For the 150,000 native soldiers the ratio is 300 per 1,000.

Thinking Is Power

Knowledge No Good Without It

Dr. Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of insulin and Professor of Medicine and Research at the University of Toronto, told students of Dalhousie University Medical School in Halifax: "Knowledge alone is not power. It is a thinking that is power. It is the danger of too little thinking that is the most serious danger to the human race. It is the most valuable thing in research. Ideas come only to the man who asks himself why, and answers the question for himself."

Under The Evening Lamp

People Used To Study At Home

The Port Arthur News-Chronicle says the long winter evening was once a time when people would sit down in their living rooms, and enter on prolonged courses of study. They drew out big learned books from some library or book store, and were determined that the winter should not pass without some added culture. Modern life keeps us going so fast that we have forgotten how to "study" when. If there isn't something to do every night, the people say they can't stand the boredom.

But the long winter evening under the living room lamp produces a quiet mind for next day's work, and people learned many things they needed to know.

Tribute To Baling Wire

Seems To Be Very Useful In Cases Of Emergency

It's a pity that more attention has not been given to the significance of baling wire. Best sellers have been written about lesser subjects. Without baling wire, who could the farmer have got his milk so well advertised?

Think of the gates held shut, the sets of harness fastened together and the other emergency uses that can be made possible by a piece of cast-off baling wire. Nor is the farmer the only one who gets his milk so well advertised. Automobiles, printing presses, coffee grinders, sewing machines and who knows what else are running this very day just because of a length of baling wire was at hand at the opportune time. Some men even put up their milk with the stiffest Cran, Missouri, Chronicle.

Drama Festivals

Amateur Theatrical Groups Are Now Rehearsing Plays

Amateur theatrical groups in cities and towns across Canada have started rehearsing plays to be presented at regional festivals preceding the Dominion drama festival in London, Ont., next autumn.

Festive governments are considering appointment of an adjudicator for the regional competitions but have not yet made a choice. Malcolm Murray, English playwright and actor, did the work last year.

Prejudicial competitors will start early in January and conclude in mid-March. The season will open in Kentville with the productions from Nova Scotia on Jan. 9 and 10. Prince Edward Island entries will be staged in Charlottetown Jan. 12-13 and the New Brunswick players will hold their festival in Saint John Jan. 16-18.

Dates of western regional festivals have been set for Saskatchewan Feb. 8-11 in Regina; British Columbia, Feb. 15-18 in Victoria, and Alberta, Feb. 22-25 at Edmonton.

A Non-Magnetic Ship

First One Ever Built in Under Construction in December

On one of the quietest of the River Dart in Devonshire, where they still build wooden ships, a brigantine is being constructed which will be the first non-magnetic ship in the world. It takes the place of the Carnegie, a marine research vessel owned by the Carnegie Institute of Washington, which is being discarded after 20 years service, and the former commander of that ship is assisting the British Admiralty in the building of it.

The principal work of the ship, which is to be called Research, will be to plot a magnetic map of the world, determining the variation between true and magnetic north. These variations are slowly but continuously changing with changes in the magnetic state of the earth. Navigation on the sea and in the air is dependent on the compass, and the compass can only be used with accuracy if the precise extent of these variations is known and allowed for.

The ship, only 770 tons displacement, will cost nearly $1,000,000. All rigged, she will have a small auxiliary engine of special type made of a bronze alloy and non-magnetic steel. Otherwise for the rest of the ship substitutes have been made where wood will not do. The keel, stem and stern posts are of Canadian steel sheathed with copper. The hull is leak on brass frames. The rivets are of brass, and the anchors, cables and wire for the rigging of an aluminum bronze alloy that looks like gold. Even the steel ball bearings on which a ship's log generally revolves are to be regulated by phosphor bronze.

The same ingenuity has been shown with regard to interior fittings. The cooking utensils, pots, pans and the like will be of copper aluminum and brass. There will be no iron anywhere. No man on board will be allowed to carry a penknife, have iron nails in his boots, or wear a watch on his trousers. A watch in his pocket. He will not even be allowed to shave with an ordinary razor. When he comes on board his possessions will come under the eye of a special instrument which detects magnetic metals.

Similar restriction will apply to the stores brought on board for use in the voyage. Food will be packed in glass bottles or cardboard cartons instead of tin. Wooden packing cases will be replaced by aluminum ones. Non-magnetic nails. Wooden for the crew will be of special non-magnetic steel, and their cigarettes will be supplied in aluminum boxes instead of tins.

The data which the Research will collect will be recorded on Admiralty charts, available to all countries, will make travel safer for the world. It is interesting to find the British and American Governments co-operating in this work for the benefit of the world's nations.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

The Royal Visit

Plans To Be Made in Canada For Tour Of King And Queen

Plans for the Canadian tour of the King and Queen will be made in Canada by the Canadian government. The effect of the statute of Westminster is that His Majesty, as King of Canada, will be advised by his Canadian ministers while on Canadian soil.

Arrangements for the royal itinerary, consequently, are the responsibility of the Dominion government. While His Majesty is in Canada a member of the Canadian cabinet will be his minister in waiting, attendant on the King to advise or receive instructions. British ministers take turns in performing this duty as His Majesty goes to the different parts of the United Kingdom.

It is supposed that but for the statute of Westminster a member of the British government would accompany the royal party through Canada to act as minister in waiting.

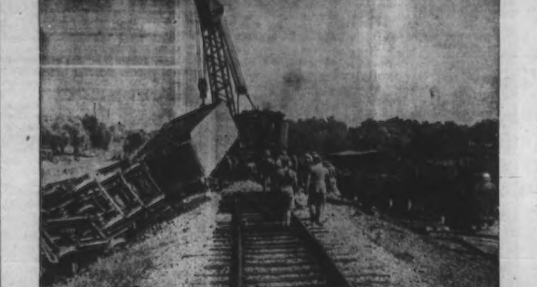

As planning of the tour is entirely in the hands of the Canadian government, all announcements regarding the royal visit to Canadian cities will come from Ottawa, not London.

ARABS CAUSING LOTS OF TROUBLE IN PALESTINE

Big Cities During Stress

Only Formal Enjoyment Allowed

Only Formal Enjoyment Allowed of Marquess of Donsheil. In all the places I have been I have had occasion to observe how the fear of imminent destruction affects people in their pleasures, says the Marquess of Donsheil, in the London Sunday Dispatch.

Curiously enough it seems to stimulate moderate-priced entertainment while killing completely all entertainment that requires dressing in formality. Certainly in Prague, in the blacked days, the cinemas and cafes were packed to capacity.

Berlin is, of course, no criterion. German cafes are always full. They were full in the worst days of the inflation of the German mark, and there is very little expensive entertainment in Germany nowadays. So it is impossible to say, had the German population been aware of the seriousness of the situation, whether it would have prevented the average German consuming his tankard of beer or not. I should think not.

Paris condemned with Prague. The city was amazingly unparadey, and so quickly did the French carry out a more extensive mobilization than they admitted that in a day or two, when I visited the St. Nord and St. Lazar stations, everything was normal again. Only the telephone remained impossible.

Life on the home wards and in the cafes gave no hint of the crisis.

And now they tell me that it had been the same London. The dance-floor tribes to the tables in the gallery, where you do not have to dress. It is natural, of course, that people should want to meet and exchange views. The places of entertainment give them that outlet.

Confession Of An Editor

Newspaper Men: How Not to Abandon To Become A Novelist

A correspondent wants to know if we could write a book. Not that I want us to, so far as we can make out, but because of a criticism which seems to have displeased him, he challenges our ability to do so.

Let us get right down to the answer. Frankly—also emphatically—no.

We are able to say without hesitation, because we've started lots of times, made some progress, even finished one a long time ago, and always reached the conclusion that writing is a waste of time.

It is natural, of course, that people should want to meet and exchange views. The places of entertainment give them that outlet.

Retinue Will Be Large

About 100 Persons Expected To Come With King And Queen

When King George and Queen Elizabeth visit Canada next May their Majesties will probably have about 100 persons in their retinue, according to reports. If they sail on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, it is said that a large part of the crew, apart from the engine room staff, will be drawn from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. Their Majesties would stay for a time with Lord Tweedmouth at Bixby Hall, it was expected.

Queer Fish

Highly Colored Specimens Is Added To New Aquarium

After a 36-year hunt the New York aquarium has obtained a Holocephalus tricolor, considered the most beautiful colored marine fish extant. Commonly known as a rock, it is one of the hardest fish in the world to catch alive. Aquarium officials have records of only three that have been captured. In 50 trips John Bess, aquarium collector, captured only one. He caught it at Bermuda. But it died in four days.

The aquarium specimen, one of two secured recently at Miami, is still partly developed. At present it is a rich orange-tinted gold with a large spot of black on either side. As it develops, an edging of red will appear round the body and fins and the nose will turn a bright blue. The fish is usually shy and avoids bathes with unusual regularity. It lingers close to coral reefs and dives to safety in deep recesses at the sight of a net.

The rock beauty joins a number of other unusual specimens recently added to the aquarium's colored collection, including zebra fish from Singapore, cowfish from the Indian ocean, trout fish like a cow from the west, and iron fish which have the lines and tinting of ripe olives.

Calgary's Women Lawyers

Calgary's second woman lawyer, Miss Mary Duncan, was admitted to the bar there by Justice W. R. Howson. "The few women lawyers that we have had have contributed greatly to the honor of the profession," Justice Howson told the new members. Miss Helen Bovee is Calgary's only other woman lawyer.

Planning Warm Welcome

United States Looking Forward To Visit Of British Sovereigns

When the King and Queen of Great Britain visit us in the Spring they will be warmly welcomed for their own sake as well as for the friendship between the two English-speaking nations which their visit signifies. The young British sovereigns come to us as symbols and strengthen the bonds linking this country to the traditional mother country. They come as a reminder of the kindred interests and common purposes and ideals underlying all differences of view and divergencies of policy of the most powerful democracies of the Old World and the New. No one will question the opportuneness of a demonstration that we speak the same language even when the accents are different.

But King George and Queen Elizabeth are more than symbols. They are real people who have made good use of the harvest and are not dissatisfied jobs in the world. They inherited the throne in trying circumstances, and they have shown a great empire at a time when thrones are anything but secure and ruling empires is a troublesome task and a wearisome business. In less than two years they have made themselves loved and respected not only in their own countries and in France, where they won the hearts of the French last summer, but wherever people stand in sympathy, kindness, dignity and the sense of responsibility in high places.

The first British reigning monarchs to cross the Atlantic represent a very old monarchy in its most democratic and modern form. King and Queen are the hardest worked of civil servants. We are glad they are coming and we are glad they will be received as democratically as to leave no doubt that the object of the royal visit is to stress the common democracy of our friendly nations in a world where kings can leave the pomp to the dictators.—New York Times.

Paid Bill In Fall

Poor Man In London Gave All He Had To Hospital

William Ernest Burfield had earned a village living all his life selling flowers in the streets of London, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. He was of the poor but honest type, a man who always paid his way. Over 20 years ago he had a critical illness and the treatment he received in the St. Thomas Hospital saved his life. Of course, there was no charge for his treatment and care, that being the way of British hospitals, you simply make a donation if you can afford it. Burfield was always grateful to the hospital, and he had decided suddenly at the age of 82. After his death it was found he had left instructions with an old friend that everything he possessed in the left room in which he lived should be sold and the proceeds given to the St. Thomas Hospital.

His neighbors knew him as a quiet, kindly man and on learning his last wishes they thought his few worldly goods were paid as much as they could afford for them and even more. A dealer had offered £10 for the lot, but the hospital bid up to a total of $71.

That sum was handed to the Westminster Hospital, which is very proud of that donation. William Ernest Burfield left it all he had—so he paid his debt in full.

The Legitimate Newspaper

Some Of The Things That Have Menaced Jerusalem

And there is another Fabulous Island, the legitimate newspaper. For every man it counts as a prize ring has it, often than the stage. The magazine, the motor car, the tobacco, the cinema, and the radio—these are some things that have "menaced" journalism, and had it picking at the counterpane, yet it seems to be that the demand for a good newspaper is greater than it is proportion than there were. But I think that soon they will improve in content, and that there will be greater instead of less independence.—F.P.A.'s Coming Tower.

No Snakes In Hawaii

Two Which Were Found Many Years Ago Were Killed

Islanders who call Hawaii the "Garden of Eden" now can complete the description—a snake has been found in Honolulu. The second sup the found in the territory's history, an 18-inch garden snake, was shipped into Honolulu shortly after eight-year-old Francis Bristle found it on a street corner. The first was accidentally executed several years ago. Hawaii, boasting the absence of snakes, will not admit them even in cures.

Will Try New Method

Company Set For Salvaging Sinking Ship

An attempt will be made soon to salvage the Grosvenor, one of the ships of the East India Company wrecked near Port St. John, on the southeast coast of Africa in 1783, the carved gold and silver have precious stones.

A company with a capital of £75,000 ($241,000) has been formed to salvage the wreck. Its prospectus estimates the value of the cargo, according to the present prices, at £2,000,000 ($24,100,000).

Nons of the cargo was saved at the time of the wreck nor was anything subsequently recovered in spite of several attempts.

The company proposes to proceed on entirely different lines from any of the previous ventures. It intends to work on operations gained since then on works of reclamation undertaken on the Zulder Zee, in Holland.

It is planned to build a breakwater 1,200 feet long and the gulch in which the wreck lies, says the prospectus. Between 400 and 500 feet of the breakwater will be close to the sea and the remainder on the rocks forming the sides of the gulch.

Just as the breakwater is to be a watertight dyke about 600 feet long and similar in construction to the dykes on the Zulder Zee. When these works are complete it is proposed to pump the water out of the gulch and then proceed the actual work of salvaging.

It is estimated the operations will take about 15 months to complete and will cost about £35,000 ($157,700).

Discover New Hormone

McGill University Workers Develop New Scientific Knowledge

Biologists at McGill University have discovered a new hormone and new scientific knowledge developed through its discovery by a McGill University worker and four colleagues. The hormone is called and the fact that its therapeutic value still was unknown—was announced by a leader of the McGill researchers, Dr. James B. Collip, head of McGill's biochemistry department.

Others who participated in the research, Dr. Collip said, were D. K. O'Donovan, who is now in Ireland; Dr. L. W. Billingsley of the national research council, Ottawa; Dr. E. F. McCann, who is now in Ireland; and Dr. J. B. Collip, who is now in Ireland. Stimulation of the human body's metabolism—or oxygen-burning rate—ranging between 20 and 40 per cent, carried out independently of the thyroid gland, is the new hormone's chief feature.

Since significance of the hormone to individuals remains unknown, but the research workers will be "getting on" with the study of the secret's relationship to the metabolism of fat," the McGill biochemist said.

Belief Of Many People

That Animals Live On The Same As Human Beings

Have animals an after-life? Have they souls? Do they die as the body dies? "The animals who know love and loss, and become a very part of the world, but they die, shall we never meet them again, have we not met for ever? The Bible does not say so. The patriarch Job, the apostle St. Paul, and the seer St. John teach us otherwise."

In his grand sermon on "The Great Deliverance," John Wesley says: "The white truce creation will then, undoubtedly, be restored not only to the vigor, strength and wisdom which they had at their creation, but is a far higher degree of each than they ever enjoyed. . . They shall enjoy happiness suited to their immortal nature, without interruption, and without end."

In believing in their immortality, we are in goodly company, for most of the world's great religious writers, John Wesley . . . Tenison, Keble, Pope, Byron, Keble, Dean Stanley and many other great men.—"The Herald."

Makes People Sleepy

If you get sleepy in a barber's chair, and having been out the night before, reflect that maybe you can't take it any more, don't let it bother you.

Conversation in a shop the other day led to the question of men sleeping in the chairs. "Lots of them do," the barber said. "I seem to be a far higher degree of each than they ever enjoyed. . . They shall enjoy happiness suited to their immortal nature, without interruption, and without end."

Scotman (at riding academy): "I wish to rent a horse."

Scotman: "The longest you've got, there'll be five of us going."
